RE: Water - Contracts and financial transaction Attorney

Please let's not talk publicly i.e., open e-mail, about people or companies who have approached us to do work. Let's put it on our meeting agenda only. I receive numerous calls from engineers, other lawyers, and financial consultants, all looking for some piece of the action in Nashua or wanting us to lobby on their behalf before city officials. We have a team that includes Carol Anderson's group, Rob's people, Dave Connell, and my staff that have a proven track record and loyalties to the city of Nashua. I am skeptical about getting anyone else involved at this time that might innocently say something about Pennichuck and trigger any type of investigation. In the last two takings, for example, the operating contracts were drafted originally by myself and Phil and reviewed by various attorneys involved. Many conditions of these contracts will ultimately be a product of the PUC hearings and negotiations. Any backup legal review is only cost effective in the final phase of the contract twelve or more months from now.

In the future let's talk about these type of requests internally at one of our meetings. Let Mark know & he will put it on the agenda.

Fine with me. Not having done this before, I am not familiar with some of the intricacies. I'm sure we will continue to get similar calls, and I will share the info in case anyone is interested.

I agree with Rob. I did speak with Bond Counsel and we could discuss at our next meeting, but the discussion went along the same lines. Carol
