RE: registration as electricity aggregator

Dear Ms. Howland:

In June 2006 EnergyWindow, Inc. filed as a foreign corporation to use the name "EnergyWindow Colorado" in New Hampshire. On January 8, 2007, EnergyWindow Colorado was given affirmation of its intent to provide electric aggregation service in New Hampshire (DM 06-147).

E Source Companies LLC acquired EnergyWindow, Inc. in 2008 and has operated under both names during the transition period from EnergyWindow, Inc. to E Source Companies LLC. All customers of EnergyWindow have been transitioned to E Source. Integrating the business records of EnergyWindow was not a smooth transition, but rather an unexpectedly daunting challenge, and we failed to renew the New Hampshire registration in October 2008. We have now assigned a fully dedicated resource to the renewal or re-instatement of all EnergyWindow broker licenses in multiple states.

E Source acts solely as a broker between large end-users and licensed suppliers, and does not take physical title to electricity or natural gas, or engage in retail sales. Our contract relationships aggregate multiple sites of a single customer, but not multiple customers in one contract. Our energy procurement specialists use the EnergyWindow auction platform to help clients identify and select quality energy supply options and sources to leverage their buying power and take maximum advantage of market opportunities. Our expertise is based on in-depth analysis of historical trends of wholesale natural gas and electricity prices. We support all types of auctions including reverse, forward, sealed, and transparent auctions. All products can be bid—for example, fixed, indexed, block and index, and heat rate.

We have enclosed our application (original, two copies and CD), all required addenda, and a check for our license fee.

We anticipate there may be follow-up requirements or items on the application that may need further clarification. Your contact to secure E Source's compliance with Massachusetts reporting is:
