Hi my name is thomas chase I recently moved to a lovely home in Canaan nh. Been there for a year. At no time was there an indication of rate increase. Suddenly I received a letter saying my electric company has reached out to you to raise its raise claiming they're losing money. First off i find it funny this has happened in a year where our area has had a few months of cold spells but comfortable enough to keep furnaces off and not install air conditioning. I ask you to take this into consideration. They need to budget better for months like these. The climate is constantly changing. An increase of an average of 10 bucks a month might not seem a lot but trust me, It can take a tole especially for those hot days when the ac will eventually get hooked up. Sincerely tom chase
