Dear Members of the PUC:

Fairly compensated Net metering makes sense for New Hampshire. Reducing the cost of procurement will have the long range effect of reducing energy costs, both in generation and transmission. While all New England states benefit from NE ISO, the real challenge will be in managing transmission costs. Other states are moving ahead of New Hampshire in encouraging decentralization, where net metering is a key incentive. I would hate to see New Hampshire ratepayers penalized by the lack of vision of either our legislators or our regulators.

Sincerely,

Representative Lucius Parshall
